

A Caring Community.

The next chapter.

Adrian Farmer is the new Executive Director of Hospice of Havasu.

Dr. Farmer comes here directly from east Tennessee, from the Tri-Cities Region, Kingsport, Bristol and Johnson City. He has worked overseas for many years, in Saudi Arabia, Egypt, Phillipines and Palau and in the USA with Appalachian Regional Healthcare, Navajo Health Foundation, the Athabascan Tribal Government and various long-term care communities. He has more than 30 years experience in healthcare, including hospital administration, public health and long term care. "I am honored to have been selected to lead this organization and to be a part of the growth and future of Hospice of Havasu," Dr. Farmer said. "I am excited about the opportunities that lie ahead."

Adrian Farmer, PhD.

Since 1982, Hospice of Havasu has been a regional pioneer in education about hospice and palliative care, earning a reputation as an innovator and a respected member of the communities we serve in Mohave and LaPaz counties.

"We plan on working with the community to continue that admirable work," Dr. Farmer said, "and to lay the groundwork for the decades ahead. We rely heavily on a wonderful staff, great volunteers and the community to do our job. We are excited about the next chapter in the meaningful history of Hospice of Havasu."

Hospice of Havasu is a not-for-profit agency, directed by a volunteer Board of Directors and a professional staff. The agency is Medicare-approved, a member of Chambers of Commerce in the communities served and a leader in providing community education about life losses, caregiver education and bereavement support.

We also proudly operate the six-patient Polidori House and our ever-busy Resale Store.
